I/we request permission for the noted duplications, for, scholarship, research, or private study. I/we will not further reproduce, distribute, or publish these duplications, except for a single copy where necessary for academic evaluation. Citations to this copy must identify the location of the originals in the "From the collections of The Henry Ford."

- The Benson Ford Research Center (BFRC) reserves the right to refuse to duplicate materials considered too brittle, fragile, or tightly bound for safe duplication.
- We are unable to duplicate large portions of our collections. Remote research is available to help make selections in your order.
- If an order is ten pages or less and if time permits, staff will complete the order before the researcher leaves the BFRC. All same day duplication orders must be submitted before 4:30pm.

The copyright status of photographs and printed material is often difficult to determine, because it is affected by such things as the employment status of the creator, the date material was created, the date material was first published, what information accompanied the first publication, and whether the copyright holder exercised his/her/its rights to extension. The Henry Ford has not determined copyright status for many of the photographs and published materials in our collection. Therefore, the Henry Ford is acting only as an owner of the physical original.

- The Henry Ford is not responsible for either determining the copyright status of the material or for securing copyright permission.
- Possession of a photocopy does not constitute permission to use it.
- Permission to use copies other than for private study, scholarship, or research requires the permission of both The Henry Ford and the copyright holder.

The copyright law of the United States (title 17, U.S. Code) governs the making of photocopies or other reproductions of copyrighted material.

Under certain conditions specified in the law, libraries and archives are authorized to furnish a photocopy or other reproduction. One of these specific conditions is that the photocopy or reproduction is not to be "used for any purpose other than private study, scholarship, or research." If a user makes a request for, or later uses, a photocopy or reproduction for purposes in excess of "fair use," that user may be liable for copyright infringement.

This institution reserves the right to refuse to accept a copying order if, in its judgment, fulfillment of the order would involve or directly lead to violation of the copyright law.
