The information that is found in the production records varies depending on the type and time period of the vehicle. However, records may include the serial and model type/number, assembly date, color and trim information, ship date and accessories. Details on the shipment of a vehicle to a branch or dealer are sometimes noted on a record. We typically do not have information on the original or subsequent owners of the vehicles.

You will receive all the information we have on your vehicle, either a photocopy or scan of the original card or information transcribed from the original ledgers onto prepared forms. For Model T records, which are available only on microfilm, you will receive the best possible copies made from the microfilm printer as well as a transcribed version of the card. Any information we have on codes used in records will be included; otherwise we do not have this information.

Reference staff reserves the right to refuse to duplicate materials considered too brittle, fragile or tightly bound for safe duplication.

I/we request permission for the noted duplications for scholarship, research or private study. I/we will not further reproduce, distribute or publish these duplications, except for a single copy where necessary for academic evaluation. Citations must include material location and state "From the collections of The Henry Ford."
