On the Cover

At The Henry Ford, millions of people are inspired by the collections, stories and experiences that helped shape America. Like Beth Paretta, who connects with Driving America in Henry Ford Museum of American Innovation. Beth started Grace AutoSport to teach young girls about STEM education.

"When I see those cars on the floor, I think about all the people who pushed them to get there. This entire museum is a monument to people who didn't give up," Beth said.

LETTER FROM THE PRESIDENT

What ignites your inner spark and awakens the dreamer, doer, mover and maker in you?

At The Henry Ford, we ask ourselves this question every day as we bring together the stories, innovations and artifacts of America's past to help inspire the millions of visitors who come here to imagine what's next.

Our unparalleled collection includes Thomas Edison's Menlo Park Lab, the home and bicycle shop where the Wright brothers first flirted with flight and the Rosa Parks Bus where the civil rights movement was set in motion. The Henry Ford also has expanding online/digital content, a charter public high school that is helping to shape the minds of our next generation of innovators and entrepreneurs, and an Emmy® Award-winning television show, The Henry Ford's Innovation Nation, every Saturday on CBS, that provides a national platform for today's most promising innovators and inventions.

These are just some of the ways by which we strive to fuel the spirit of American innovation and inspire an optimistic, entrepreneurial, can-do culture.

Welcome to your world of possibility and potential.

Welcome to The Henry Ford.

Patricia
