Motor Muster commemorates the 100th anniversary of Ford Motor Company’s purchase of Lincoln Motor Company in 1922. Under Edsel Ford’s direction, Lincoln combined innovative engineering and striking design in celebrated cars like the Zephyr and the first-generation Continental. William Clay Ford revived the Continental name, as a make of its own, in the 1950s with the elegant Continental Mark II. And the clean, modern Lincoln Continentals of the 1960s were the choice of presidents, dignitaries and celebrities everywhere. We’ll honor Lincoln’s legacy by highlighting some of the company’s most inspired and influential automobiles from the 1930s into the 1970s.
